Pastor's Thoughts

I have stuck to my new year's resolution and have finally started going through the boxes of my parents stuff. Boxes we have moved but never opened. It has been somewhat emotional at times, but it has also been fun. I found a clock that my parents had, but it does not work. Garland put a new battery in, but it stayed at 1 o'clock for 3 hours. I finally told him to take it down and throw it away.

Lent is like that clock. We start with a new battery on Ash Wednesday, but we have to keep going to begin to change our lives for the better. It is a journey. It is like going through boxes. We never know what we will find, but we need to get through it all. Lent is a time to look through the boxes in our lives. Lent is a time for searching in our souls. It is finding those things we thought we had lost, and finding the things that we need to move our faith forward.

During this coming season of Lent, we will be focusing on nature. We are going to look at this earth a little differently each Sunday. We will be using everyday items to center our lives. These are gifts from our Lord. I am praying it will open our hearts up to the little things we have forgotten to look at, so we will know all that God has given us. We will come to know that he understands every little part of each one of us.
